VARSITY LOSES TO HARVARD FIVE AT CAMBRIDGE, DEC. 19

Crimson Wins in Brilliant Passing Game

CLARKSON 22; MIDDLEBURY 13

Home Game With Engineers Closely Contested

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 20.—The Blue quintet lost its second game of the season to Harvard here last night by a score of 39-17. The Crimson five played a brilliant passing game and the two new basket shooters were discovered in the guards, Rudofsky and Samboroski, the pair tallying twenty of Harvard's points. The scoring for the Varsity was evenly divided, Knowles holding the honors.

As in the Clarkson game, Middlebury had a fine defense but little offense. In the first half she scored only one field goal. Harvard took the lead early in the half and ran up twenty points while Middlebury was scoring four. With the game half over it seemed as if the Blue would take one of its worst beatings in recent years.

Coming up from the rest period the Blue cagemen played as if a new team. Changing from a five man defense to a man to man, they played a much better game, and held Harvard even for a time. The game ended, however, with Harvard on the long end of the score.

Drops First Game To Clarkson

Middlebury, Dec. 16.—Middlebury lost her first basketball game of the season, 22-13, to Clarkson Tech, in the gymnasium last night. The game was close. Clarkson lead at half time and a short rally in the second half gave them the game.

This game gave Coach Perkins a chance to try his system, which is new this year. It also presented a fine chance to try out his players, practically the whole team getting into the game. Late in the first half and again in the last the entire second team were put in. Although unable to tally, they held Clarkson scoreless.

The Varsity showed a fine defensive style of play but was unable to penetrate the Engineers guarding. Practically all the scoring of both sides was done from in back of the foul line. Fish, high score man for Middlebury, made three baskets in this manner. Besides being high scorer he consistently out-jumped his opponent. Clarkson also, had difficulty getting into position to shoot but was able to score more long shots. For Clarkson Boucher, Calderello and French starred.

1924 CAPTAIN

Marshall Klevenow

KLEVENOW CHOSEN FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

Big Milwaukee Athelete to Lead Next Season's Eleven

Marshall Klevenow '25, was chosen captain of football at a meeting of the football lettermen a short time before the Christmas recess.

Klevenow is a graduate of South Division High School, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where he gained experience in the gridiron sport before coming to Middlebury. He also participated in the weight-throwing contests. During his freshman year at Middlebury he played in both the end and fullback positions on the squad, was one of the freshman basketball team, and played second base in Varsity baseball. He is known as a cool and consistent athlete. His kicking toe has gained quite a reputation for him, especially in the Harvard game of this season where his two placement kicks tied the score 6-6. His line bucking was a prominent feature of the Norwich-Middlebury game this year. He held the second sack position on the nine again last spring and is now on the Varsity basketball squad.

Aside from his athletic accomplishments, Klevenow is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity and of the Sages.

Glee Club To Appear In Carnegie Hall, New York City, March 1st

Middlebury's application for entrance into the Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest to be held in Carnegie Hall, New York City, March 1, has been accepted and was approved by the college authorities yesterday. This means that the Middlebury Glee Club will journey to the metropolis March 1 and offer its goods in competition with some of the best college clubs of the East. Among them are the clubs of Harvard, Yale, Amherst, Williams, Syracuse, Cornell, Columbia and Dartmouth.

Middlebury's success in gaining a place in this contest, which is an annual affair of some significance in New York musical circles, is largely due to the decisive action of E. S. Kalin, manager of the Club, and Mr. Alfred Larsen, conductor.

YEARLINGS DEFEAT VERMONT, 27-22

Win Over Springfield on Home Floor Dec. 15

The yearling five won its second game of the season and advanced a step toward winning the state Frosh championship Saturday night when it defeated the Vermont Freshmen at Burlington, 27-22. The play was even and close until in the final minutes ,a determined rally by the Blue five gave it the game.

As in the Springfield game, Middlebury presented a well-drilled five-man defense with a good offensive attack. Rich and Hasseltine starred on both offense and defense. The former's 7 field goals and 2 fouls kept his team in the running. With the yearlings still behind and the game near ended, Rich heaved two baskets from the center of the floor,which decided the result. Eddy at center, Fales at forward, and Lance at guard also played stellar roles.

For the University, Payne and Crawford, Varsity football men, kept Middlebury going at top speed. Amarantes was high scorer with 4 field goals and a foul. Vermont led at half time, 14-8.

Frosh Defeat Springfield

The first year men won their opening game of the season on the home floor, Dec. 15, over the undefeated Springfield High School team, State High School champions. The Freshmen took the lead early and held it to the end of the game.

Eddie Drost's men showed a new form of basketball to their supporters. Close guarding with a five-man defense gave Springfield only two baskets and these were from the center of the floor. Frequent breaks for the basket by the yearlings with Rich doing the shooting yielded them the game. At the opening of the second half the visitors started with a rush scoring 4 points. The Frosh got down to work at once, however, and ran the score into a safe lead. When Rich was put out late in the game for four personals, the entire second team went in. They were unable to add any points but held their opponents scoreless.

For the Blue, Rich scored most of the points, Church being the only other scorer. The work of Hasseltine at

EDWARD BOK GIVES BIG PEACE PRIZE

$100,000 Award Is Given To Plan 1469 In Essay Contest

The Edward W. Bok $100,000 prize for the best plan by which the United States might cooperate with other nations for the prevention of war has been awarded. The text of the winning plan, No. 1469, appeared in the daily papers of Jan. 6 and 7, together with ballots by which the people may show their approval or disapproval of the plan, which is one of 22,165 submitted. The name of the successful author will not be disclosed until the national referendum is finished, early in February.

In brief, the winning plan calls for the United States' immediate entry into the World Court and greater cooperation with the League of Nations, tho not as a member. It proposes to "substitute moral force and public opinion for the military and economic force originally implied in Articles X and XVI; safeguard the Monroe Doctrine; accept the fact that the United States will assume no obligations under the treaty of Versailles except by Act of Congress; propose that membership in the League should be opened to all nations; provide for the continuing development of international law."

Tho it was not possible to publish the complete manuscript of the plan, the ballot printed below gives readers of the CAMPUS an opportunity to vote, after a careful reading of the plan.

GLEE CLUB TO SING IN BIG SPRINGFIELD AUDITORIUM FEB. 10

Harvard Club Only Other That Has Appeared There

ALSO TO INCLUDE GREENFIELD ON TRIP

To Be At Brattleboro Carnival Week

The Middlebury Glee Club this year is to have the most extensive program ever attempted, Manager E. S. Kalin announced yesterday. Probably the biggest feature will be the appearance of the Club in the public auditorium of Springfield, Mass., on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 10. Middlebury has been especially fortunate in obtaining this engagement as but one other college Glee Club, that of Harvard, has sung there in several years. Springfield is a city of lovers of music of the highest class, and in these weekly Sunday afternoon recitals only the best music has been presented. That the Boston Symphony Orchestra played there last week shows the type of organization that has been selected for these concerts. The auditorium has a seating capacity of over four thousand people. The appearance of the Middlebury Glee Club in Springfield is due partly to the personal acquaintance of J. Allan Hunter, leader of the club, with the Y. M. C. A. authorities in charge.

Although a full schedule has not been completely arranged as yet, the club will make several other appearances in other towns while on the Springfield trip. It will sing in Greenfield, Mass., the Saturday before under the auspices of the Middlebury Alumni there. On Friday evening of that week, it is planned to appear in Brattleboro, Vermont, under the auspices of the Women's Club. This is the week of the National Winter Sports Contest there and a large attendance is expected.

Although definite dates have not yet been arranged, there is a possibility of giving concerts in Springfield, Vermont, and in Northfield and Mt. Hermon, Mass. Barney Potratz '22, athletic coach at Springfield High School and a member of the High School association, has been instrumental in arranging a concert at that place.

Our Precious Reputations

One common affliction we have, and that is an all-absorbing desire to "save our face." Admitting that the world's evils and mistakes are common property, we object seriously to owning our just share. The rarest creature in the world is the individual who, having blundered, frankly admits the fact, without attempt at excuse or qualification. Museums of natural history should have special departments for such specimens. Emerson says, "Men imagine that they communicate their virtue or vice only by overt actions, and do not see that virtue or vice emit a breath every moment." To what good then is this vain struggling to camouflage one's ill qualities and errors with an outward appearance of rightness and of exoneration.

It is instinctive to desire to be thought well of, to be esteemed, admired, pointed out as great among one's fellows. Reputation is valued above money price, and to gain it means are employed which are in their way more despicable than the ways in which property is secured. Granted that a good reputation is desirable, the old adage "Take care of character, and reputation will take care of self", always holds good. Character however requires honesty; it has nothing to do with hypocrisy even in little matters. Character may be whitewashed with excuses and alibis, but the storms of action have an irresistible way of dissolving such whitewash. Character needs no whitening; it is resplendent in itself, not because the owner wishes it to shine but because it simply can not help doing so.

Then why all this petty striving to increase and to protect one's reputation? Why all these attempts at excuse, justification, apology? Why this twisting, and squirming, and crawling to hide one's true actions and motives from the light of day? We have sympathy for the sinner, but precious little for the Pharisee. You are popular? Well and good; let it be so. You are unpopular? Equally well and good; let it be so. In deciding the ever-present question "What shall I do?" the free man will have nothing whatever to do with the judgments of his neighbors.

"To thine own self be true;
And it must follow as the night the day,
Thou cans't not then be false to any man."

It is a source of great gratification—and one which we rarely experience—to encounter one person who refuses to "pass the buck." Where would the business man land were he to perform his business duties as the average college student dabbles in activities?

Let Kindliness Dictate

What is the New Year going to mean to you?

Perhaps you have sat down with paper and pencil and framed a long list of serious resolutions. Perhaps you have made several in jest with a friend. At any rate, as 1924 approached, ideas of that conduct which would tend to make your year finer and more comprehensive must have occurred to you.

Now, what we are all ultimately striving for is self-development. Such a development if based solely upon selfish motives would surely fail. Of course, there are bad habits, such as procrastination, laziness, carelessness, which should be resolved away each year. But the really worthwhile resolutions are those which enlarge our own lives by making others happier, and their lives likewise larger. We have seen the proof of this time and again reflected in those whom we most admire.

The New Year has barely begun. The time is still apropos to make any number of resolutions. Why not let kindliness and unselfishness be our dictators in enlarging our list of resolutions for the coming year?

Thank you, friends and profs, the vacation was most enjoyable! However, it seems fine to get back to the dear old place—since there are only about 98 more days until we go home again. Think of it—a mere 2,352 hours ere we depart! Simply 151,120 odd seconds to while away with exams and other pleasant tortures!

"This is the most unkindest cut of all," remarked the engraver as he made a half-tone of the girl who jilted him.

A contributor sends this in: A student bemoaned the fact in a public speaking class the other day that the only thing he learned about the Latin race while taking Caesar was that it was the race between the Latin pony and the teacher's goat.

The Idler wishes to confirm that impression. He too, read about Julius and his Garlic War!

Have you heard about the freshman, an enthusiastic fisherman, who asked with utmost concern when shown a new baby brother for the first time: "Can you keep 'em that small?"

Weather: Cloudy; south winds changing constantly; local showers. The Idler feels safe in predicting local showers for there must be some locality in the whole U. S. that will have 'em.

"Ther ain't no sich animile"
I never saw a blue baboon.
I never hope to see one.
But I can tell you, anyhow—
I'd rather see than be one!

Transitory Translations

After studying extensively, expensively and expansively for the last twenty years of his life, the Idler has at last been able to translate from the original Japanese, a code of rules which he offers to the Mulberry Motor Maniacs with the hope that the great loss of life thru the carelessness of drivers who infest the busy thoroughfares in our downtown area may be greatly reduced and some courtesy afforded to the pestrian. The Idler has stuck strictly to a literal translation and begs your indulgence for the lack of smooth diction.

New Rules for the Operationing of the Mechanical Carry-All

1. At the rise of the hand of the honorable policeman, stop with rapidness greatly. Do not pass him or otherwise disrespect him.

2. When a passenger of foot heaves in sight, tootle the horn, melodiously at first. If he still obstacles your passage, tootle him with a large vigor and express by word of mouth a warning "Hi, Hi".

3. Beware of the wandering sow that she shall not take fright as you pass. Do not explode your exhaust noise-box at her!

4. Give space to the festive dog that makes play-sport in the roadway. Avoid entangling your dog with the wheelspoke.

5. Go smoothly on the grease-mud, for there lurks the skiddy demon. Press the brake of the foot as you roll around the corner, thus saving collapse and lie-up.

6. When the bus for your home place heaves in sight push not the senile old lady in front; whisper gently in her ear at first, "Hi, Hi". If she seemeth not to hear, nudge her in the lumbar region, denoting with smiling face your desire to pass.

7. If the honorable officer for the enforcement of less haste upon the public thoroughfare, surrounds you from the rear, kick firmly with the heel the abomination of all pleasure, the hastemeter, thus removing all evidence of your knowledge concerning the rate at which your vehicle progresseth.

8. If the liquid nourishment which causeth your carry-all to make haste from place to place runneth out and causeth said vehicle to end all further advancement, call not the wrath of your honorable ancestors down on the dog of a dealer that defiled himself and his progenitors by selling the motor auto to you, but hie thee back on the first instruments of motion and transportation, the feet, and get the required supply for progression.

Cast Your Ballot

Edward W. Bok has given the American people a chance to show that they are interested in establishing world peace. The number of entries in his prize essay contest have proven that interest. The newspapers of the country are now giving their readers a chance to vote on the winning plan, which provides for the entry of the United States into the World Court but not into the League of Nations as now constituted. The CAMPUS is printing this ballot with the hope that Middlebury students will avail themselves of the opportunity of declaring their stand on this question of world importance.

Capital Makes Merry Around Middlebury Tree

Photographs of the giant Christmas Tree which was sent as a gift from Middlebury College to President Coolidge were shown all over the country in the Pathe Moving Picture News, and were published in many of the important newspapers. The New York Sunday Times rotogravure section carried two pictures, one of President Moody cutting the tree, and another of the tree being erected upon the White House grounds.

The sixty foot evergreen was decorated with thousands of tiny colored electric lights. It became the center of Christmas festivities in Washington for the entire holiday week. Hundreds of school children gathered around the tree to sing Christmas Carols.

President John M. Thomas of Penn State College will occupy the pulpit of Mead Memorial Chapel at the Vespers service next Sunday evening.

The second day was devoted to group discussions of these subjects and to addresses showing their relation to the Christian missionary enterprise. For this purpose the Convention was divided into groups of about 250 each, under student leaderships. The third session was devoted to forums dealing with types of Christian service. The rest of the Convention was given to a more detailed study of world conditions, to a study of the full meaning of Christianity and its message and ministry to the world, and to a survey of the field of Christian service both in connection with organized Christian work and in consular, diplomatic and professional fields.

Rule Not to Effect Upper Classes

The following statement by Dean Wiley explains a regulation which appears for the first time in the new catalog:

The statement on page 96 of the 1923-24 catalog to the effect that,

"If a student who has had the privilege of a scholarship shall leave Middlebury to transfer to another institution, he shall become chargeable with the full amount of back tuition"

applies only to students entering in 1923 and subsequent years and is not intended to apply to students who had been granted scholarships prior to the current year. Notification of this action was given to all new holders of scholarships before the opening of the current year.

To Give Illustrated Talk at Town Hall

Mr. Albert A. Northrop, of the construction firm of Stone and Webster, Inc., will give a lecture of unusual interest in the town hall next Wednesday afternoon at 4:00 under the auspices of the vocational guidance committee.

Mr. Northrop's talk will deal largely with a big power project which his company is developing in the Sierra Nevada mountains, where an eleven hundred foot waterfall is being harnessed to furnish power for the city of San Francisco, nearly 200 miles away. Mr. Northrop will bring with him three reels of moving pictures and several colored slides with which to illustrate in a non-technical manner the wonders of this engineering project. He will incidentally show some views of the beautiful mountain scenery of the Sierra Nevadas. Admission for this lecture will be free as for all of the vocational series.

PROFESSOR CADY SPEAKS AT VESPERS

Says Conversion Means Dedication to Service

"The Bible," said Professor Frank W. Cady in his vesper address in Mead Memorial chapel on Sunday, "is composed of the experiences of men of note, men of all sorts, true and false, trying to find out something about the God who made them. It is the narrative of men searching after the divine, some being more successful than others. We understand them because they were men like ourselves.

Of those prophets who were most successful Professor Cady chose as his example, Isaiah, and the story of his conversion as told in Isaiah VI, from which was taken his text. "Here am I. Send me." He pointed out the significance of this text for this particular season of the New Year, when our thoughts should be turning to a year of service, which is the true meaning of conversion. "The old idea of conversion," declared Professor Cady, "was taking out a sort of insurance against eternal damnation, but true conversion is dedication to Christ and to His service." He then spoke of the ways in which Isaiah served Christ in his work as a statesman, guiding the nation and the people. "The best kind of leadership can come only to those who have seen their God, and met him face to face as Isaiah did in the temple."

In conclusion he said, "If we are to make ourselves of most use, we can go no better way than by taking the experiences of those men of note, and seeking God, forgetful of the future and with the desire to be of the utmost service to our comrades."

Talk It Over At Home

A Christmas Vacation Suggestion To Seniors

THIS is your last year in college. This is your last Christmas vacation.

Your career after graduation is a question that you will want to talk over with the folks at home. They will be even more interested than you are. Now is the time to do it.

The John Hancock has in its field organization producers who began as life insurance men immediately after graduation and have made a conspicuous success of it.

Why waste time trying out something else which looks "just as good" and then come into the life insurance work to compete with the man who got into the game from the start?

Talk it over at home and remember that you can get information and helpful advice by addressing

To Meet Norwich Saturday

Coach Perkins' quintet will meet Norwich Saturday night on the home floor in its first game of the state triangular series. As a preliminary game, the undefeated Frosh will meet Waterbury High School. Waterbury has a hard schedule of 42 games, and has won 7 out of 8 played thus far.

Hockey Team to Meet Williams Saturday

The first game of the hockey schedule takes place this Saturday when Middlebury meets Williams on the Williamstown rink. This will be a hard test for the Middlebury team, few of whom have had extensive experience, for the Williams team is reputed to be one of the best in New England this winter. They have already won over Dartmouth and Yale.

On January 18 the Blue will meet Union and the next day R. P. I. Both of these games will be away. Arrangements are being made for more games later in the season, but exact dates have not as yet been determined.

E. D. Drost, freshman coach, is coaching the hockey squad this year. About twenty men have reported for practice including Fletcher, Leary, McLaughlin, Twitchell, Gonsalves of last year's team and several freshmen. As hockey is a minor sport, freshmen are eligible to participate.

Music Features Christmas Services

The Christmas Vesper service was held December 16 in Mead Memorial Chapel under the direction of the Music Department. An organ prelude, "Coming of the Magi," was followed by carols sung by the choir. Haydn's Symphony No. 6, second movement, was rendered most artistically by the college orchestra under the leadership of Michael Prata. A violin solo, "L'Hymn a St. Cecile," a violoncello solo, "Kol Nedrei, by Elizabeth Ferguson, and an anthem, "Hosanna," by the choir followed.

Dr. V. C. Harrington gave a short talk on the need of having Jesus Christ in our hearts in the nation, and in international affairs. The service was concluded by an anthem by the choir, "Hail, the Virgin's Son," in which Mrs. E. D. Collins was the soloist.

NO MONEY IN NEWS WRITING SAYS OBRIEN

"Journalism is not a paying profession," said Robert L. O'brien, editor of the Boston Herald, in his vocational talk in the Chemistry l cture room, Dec. 12. "The consideration of salary often does not seem important to college students, but in later years assumes greater dimensions. No one should enter journalism for any reason except the love of the work.

"Journalism," said Mr. O'brien, "is a unique calling in that it does not necessitate previous training, and has no exact standards of attainment. Because of this the number of people entering the field is enormous, but comparatively few remain. On account of the oversupply of applicants the salaries are decidedly low. The really lucrative positions in journalism are few, and their attainment is a matter not only of application but also of accident. The best positions are the syndicate writers or the proprietors of comparatively small papers.

"Journalism is, however, a valuable training ground for other occupations, particularly for those taking up writing or politics. It is a great school for educational experience because of the chance to be in intimate contact with the world of affairs and its leaders."

While considrring that the only fair thing to do was to discourage the great mass of young men from entering the profession, Mr. O'brien said that for those who persisted he had real sympathy and interest and that personally he had never regretted having undertaken the work.

Drama Club Split Into Eight Sections

At a meeting of the Dramatic Club in the Chemistry Building Monday afternoon Professor Cady, who presided, announced that in the future the club is to be divided into eight groups, each group made up of fourteen people who are to be responsible for one one-act play. These plays are to be given in Old Chapel every two weeks, the first one being scheduled for February 8.

Through the subscription to the Drama Magazine the club is now formally a member of the Drama League of America, and an affirmative vote was taken to join the Little Theatre Guild of New York City, also by subscription to the monthly published by that organization.

H. J. Hulihan and S. F. Martin were delegates to the Deke convention in Montreal, Dec. 27, 28 and 29.
